Vietnam – A Growing Hub for Plastics Industry

- Fast Growth: Market expanding from USD 6.47 billion (2023) to USD 9.24 billion (2030) (~5.2% annual growth). Rising Consumption: Plastics demand expected to jump from 10.8 to 17 million tons by 2030, driven by packaging, electronics, construction, and automotive sectors.
- FDI Magnet: Major investments from BASF, Dow, SCG, Formosa, boosted by competitive costs and strong export potential.
- Export Powerhouse: Vietnam exports over USD 5 billion/year in plastic products, targeting USA, Japan, EU.
- Sustainability Shift: Growing interest in bio-plastics and recycling solutions.

Vietnam's Plastic Products Export – Latest Update

From January to October 2024, Vietnam's plastic product exports reached approximately USD 2.26 billion, increasing +33.6% in volume and +28.5% in value compared to the same period in 2023. The total export turnover for 2023 was estimated at USD 5-6 billion, including both raw materials and finished plastic products. The United States remains the largest export market, accounting for over USD 2.3 billion in imports of Vietnamese plastic products. FDI companies contribute around 66% of Vietnam's total plastic exports, highlighting the dominant role of foreign investors in the sector. With sustained growth in export value and production, Vietnam continues to emerge as a key plastics manufacturing and export hub in Asia, especially towards the US, EU, and Japan.
